Political candidates woo city folks last week

Bob Price talks with WTSU student.

Sissy Farenthold makes campus visit.

Rep. Bryan Poff speaks to local group.

The politicians came in droves to Canyon late last week. First, U.S. Rep. Bob Price spent nearly a full day in the city visiting with students and chatting with businessmen. Mrs. Sissy Farenthold stopped only 30 minutes in Canyon to shake a few hands early in the day Thursday. And, Thursday evening the Canyon Political Action Group hosted more than a dozen candidates and gave them an opportunity to introduce their platforms. On Saturday, State Sen. Jack Hightower, campaigning for the Democratic nomination to U.S. Congress, visited during the morning in the city. See stories on this page and inside.

Feedlot reopening question mark

No decision has yet been reached by the board of Happy Wheat Growers Feedyard on whether or not they will reopen their 20,000 head capacity lot in south Randall County.

Board members met several times daily last week in the wake of an apparently complex situation which caused the yard to cease feeding operations last week.

Cattle owners began removing their cattle from the yard last Tuesday and directors hope all cattle will be removed from the lot by the end of the month.

R.B. Gist Jr., president of Happy Wheat Growers, said Saturday a complete audit of the yard's books will begin Monday by an outside auditing firm to help determine the causes of the cessation of operation of the feedyard.

Gist and Director Bill Dugan said Saturday the directors are still not sure what prompted the financial bind which caused the closing of the yard and the removal of the cattle.

They hope the audit will aid a decision about future refinancing and possible reopening of the yard.

Gist said financial factors caused the closing of the yard. Area banks called the notes held by the yard payable a week ago.

"We just ran out of money and had no feed to feed them," one official said.

Although the feedyard has changed names and is operating under the name 7-Bar Feeders, the yard is still legally owned by the Happy Wheat Growers, Gist said.

A contract of sale signed by directors of Happy Wheat Growers and directors of 7-Bar Feeders in February called for an immediate name change of the yard. But, 7-Bar Feeders was not to assume full operation of the yard until all obligations under the contract have been fulfilled. All obligations were to be fulfilled by May 1.

Trucks poured into and out of the yards late last week as owners picked up their cattle. Armed guards were posted at the gates of the yard checking each vehicle as it left the yard.

Sheriff's deputies were also on duty at the yard, according to Sheriff Cliff Longest to prevent any disturbances by disgruntled owners.

BULLETIN

Representatives of Happy Wheat Growers have asked Judge Don Dean for a temporary restraining order to regain control of cattle pens east of the Happy Wheat Growers Feedyard from former manager Wayne Bedwell, an informed source said Saturday afternoon.

A hearing on the order is expected to be held this week before Judge Dean.

Bedwell is quoted in today's News as saying he has formed a new company operating out of the east cattle pens with 11,000 head of cattle.

Congressman Bob Price, a dedicated hawk during the Vietnam War but a backer of President Nixon, spoke in favorable terms Thursday of the need for detente with Russia.

Price, who once told newsmen he'd suggest the use of nuclear weapons to bring a speedy end to the Vietnam campaign, talked with local businessmen here of the frightening aspects of the arms race.

A member of the House Armed Services Committee, Price, in most of his appearances in Canyon in the past, has spoken of the arms race in terms of a hidden war which must be won by the U.S.

Price spent the morning and part of the afternoon Thursday speaking to students on the West Texas State University campus and with businessmen at a luncheon prepared in his honor.

Price, a member of the Armed Services Committee subcommittee on research and development, said scientists in the U.S. and Russia are producing exotic weapons which could "kill everybody on earth."

Already, he said, the two countries have enough weaponry in their arsenals to kill everyone 50 times over.

"This is why detente is talked about," he said. "We either fight or we live together. Doesn't it make more sense to open up some kind of avenue of talk rather than annihilate all the people on this planet?"

Price said with only the push of a button, nuclear weapons could be used to destroy 55 per cent of the American population, that part of the population living in the nation's 100 largest cities.

While the congressman appears to have softened his views on the arms race with Russia, he has not softened on the question of amnesty for draft evaders of the Vietnam War era.

"I won't entertain any amnesty for any of them," he said. "I think they're traitors to their country."

A wide range of topics presented themselves to Price during his stay in the city, particularly topics concerning the energy crisis and the economic situation.

Price told the local businessmen the energy crisis has become a political football with leading Democrats in the Congress trying to make political hay out of the shortages.

In response to a question, Price said the Congress upon return after the Easter break to Washington will consider a bill proposing elimination of the oil depletion allowance.

He said the bill may pass the House but could be bottled up in the Senate.

Price charged that leading Democratic contenders for the party's presidential standard-bearer have attempted to pass through both houses of Congress two energy bills which would have embarrassed the President and which would not have solved the problems.

One bill, presented before Christmas, failed passage, and another was vetoed by the President for good reason, Price said.

The Congressman said, in assessing the mood of Congress, that impeachment of Nixon is unlikely unless "something more devastating comes out."

Price said Congress will probably not impeach the President unless an offense, punishable in a court of law, is proven or even bared.

He backed the President's recalcitrance in terms of resignation.

"I definitely think he should not resign for the sake of our country," he said. "The accomplishments of our President so far outweigh his negative criteria he should not resign."

Price said it would be politically naive to believe that political skullduggery has not been a part of all election campaigns.

"If they think in the next cam-

This is the way Happy Wheat Growers Feedyard looked only a few days ago as nearly 20,000 head of cattle filled the pens.

Impact of court ruling on code for school dress awaited here

A Texas Supreme Court ruling which state-wide news media reported might create problems for school boards in enforcement of dress codes will have no immediate impact on the Canyon School District code.

But, that doesn't mean the court ruling won't cause changes in the local school board's policies possibly before the end of the spring term.

Supt. of Schools Jerry Jacobs said Friday he is not sure at this time of the specifics of the court ruling, reported Thursday by the state's media.

He said he expects a directive from the Texas Education Agency within the next month on the ruling, a directive the substance of which could alter or possibly eliminate the school dress code here.

Until such a directive is received, he said, the current dress code will continue in full force.

But, when the directive is given the local board, Jacobs said the local code will certainly be considered in light of the TEA memo and the court ruling.

He said he could glean nothing concrete from media stories circulated Thursday concerning the court action.

"You know how this goes when you read generalities," he said. "You have to get into the judge's opinion to see."

He said it might also be possible the court ruling applies only to the specific case involved before the court.

"In a landmark decision that could force many Texas school districts to alter or possibly eliminate their dress and grooming codes, the Texas Supreme Court has said a person's grooming habits must disrupt or distract students before they can be enforced," said an Austin-originated story. "The decision means districts may not be able to enforce dress and grooming codes on the basis that relaxation of such codes would cause distractions and lack of discipline."

The Canyon district code has been a bone of contention for students in recent years and for some parents.

One parent scolded school board members several years ago for their strict policy which restricts the hair length of male students. The code now forbids long hair.

The code also speaks to girls' attire.

Concerning the length of boys' hair, the code now stipulates: "Hair must be well groomed, clean and trimmed, the length to be above the collar in the back, out of the eyes and not to extend below the mid-point of the ear. Sideburns are allowed so long as they do not extend below the ear and are well trimmed. Moustaches and beards are not acceptable."

Boys, says the code, may wear wigs so long as the wigs meet the same requirements set out for hair length.

The code sets out standards for girls' dress by stipulating the kinds of clothing which may be worn and the kinds of clothing which would be frowned on by the administration.

Water to Hunsley Hills to be off eight hours

Water and sewer service for residents of Hunsley Hills will be disrupted for about eight hours Thursday as city crews lower and case lines in preparation for the expected construction of a grade separation going into the area.

City Manager George Loudder said water will be off to the addition beginning about 9 a.m. Thursday and will not be turned back on until about 5 p.m.

Notices will be sent all Hunsley Hills residents warning of the water turnoff, he said.

The turn-off is necessitated due to the pending construction of a grade separation at 15th Street and U.S. 60. The Texas Highway Department is to open bids for construction of the grade separation on Tuesday.

Loudder said city crews must lower the existing water and sewer lines and also must extend the casing on the lines due to the highway department project.

The lines to be lowered and cased provide water for the whole of the current housing in Hunsley Hills.

Canyon's volunteer fire department will have special transport water units located in various spots around Hunsley Hills throughout the 8-hour period to be on hand in case of fire or other emergency, he said.

Current depth of the water and sewer lines to be lowered is eight to nine feet. They must be lowered another two to three feet.

Loudder said the lines must be lowered for only

Sissy sets sights on Dolph's doings

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Sissy Farenthold breezed through Canyon Thursday morning, stopping only long enough to shake a few hands and discuss the issues briefly.

Mrs. Farenthold, who challenges incumbent Dolph Briscoe on the May 4 primary ballot, toured the student union building on the West Texas State University campus, stopping only long enough to shake hands and introduce herself.

The stop on campus was part of a Panhandle-area bus tour for Mrs. Farenthold, who was defeated in a similar primary two years ago by Briscoe.

During her stay in Canyon, Mrs. Farenthold said the incumbent governor has spent the bulk of his first two-year term in office preparing for the campaign and a comfortable four-year term if re-elected in November.

She noted that many persons she's talked to around the state are either unaware or don't care that the governor elected in November will serve a four-year term, rather than a two-year term.

She said "people don't realize the difference a four-year term will make," and pointed specifically to the kinds of appointments Briscoe has been making.

For example, she said, Briscoe pushed a measure through the last legislature increasing the number of persons on the Texas Animal Health Commission.

Hightower revving up for November run

Although he said he takes both his opponents in the Democratic primary seriously, State Senator Jack Hightower in a campaign swing through Canyon Saturday made it obvious that he is already looking to November and has his guns trained on Congressman Bob Price.

Hightower faces Ray Ruffin and Dr. Louis Finney, both of Amarillo, in his Democratic primary quest to represent his party on the ballot for the 13th congressional seat now held by Price.

Hightower says he is confident he will carry his old 30th Senatorial district made up of 16 counties and hopes to run well in this end of the district.

The state senator from Vernon listed the confidence in government crisis, the water crisis, the economic crisis and the energy crisis as the four major issues facing the nation and voters of the district.

"I think the effect of Watergate is going to be a crisis in confidence in government," declared the candidate. "The people are disappointed."

He likened the present apparent lack of confidence in the federal government to the distrust for state government in Texas two years ago when a comparative unknown, Sissy Farenthold, outran the incumbent governor and the lieutenant governor in the race for the office of state chief executive. Names of both officials had been unfavorably linked with the Sharpstown scandal.

Hightower said he does not intend to dwell on Watergate but plans to make his campaign on a positive approach.

Hightower said he wants to see the federal government take a productive approach on solving the water crisis in West Texas.

"We have had leadership that has not tried to look to the future," he charged saying that the U.S. Congress had voted within the past two years to take the federal government out of water planning and had turned it over to the states.

Hightower declared that water planning is a national problem, cannot be solved on a state by state basis and must be a responsibility of the federal government.

Hightower was co-author of the Texas Water Plan which was defeated in referendum in apathetic voting a few years back.

He asserted that leadership must look at least 20 years into the future in providing for water needs.

"We cannot afford elected representatives who do not take an active lead in providing federal assistance in this area," Hightower declared.

"Congressman Price instead of trying to provide leadership

Our World

Down With Saxbe

By ANN BROWN

Attorney General William B. Saxbe was quoted in the paper last week as saying he did not know why crime was proliferating. Then he declared "no one knows," and demanded "a big chunk" of federal money for "pilot projects" to discover experimentally the cause of crime.

For the Attorney General to admit he is unaware of the cause of crime is comparable to the Commanding General of our armed forces saying he did not know the needs or potential of our fighting men.

Wide publicity was given to one 3-year, 3 million dollar "pilot study" on the cause of crime. The experts concluded lack of respect for authority generated crime.

Probably no rational adult would take issue with that report.

Any first-grade teacher, however, could have told them that in three minutes, and it would not have cost the taxpayers 3 million dollars. Many teachers from kindergarten through college would be delighted to supply that information as a public service.

In the early 1960s another group of experts did a study of the etiology of crime. They discovered that 60 percent of the nation's violent crimes were perpetrated by 10 percent of the population: the blacks.

The cause of violent crime was therefore, they concluded, racial discrimination. Do away with all racial discrimination, and the crime issue would be solved.

In an effort to eliminate discrimination against blacks, current American policies definitely discriminate against whites. Yet the crime ratio has changed only in that 12 percent of Americans are now black, and their participation in violent crime has increased to an even greater proportion than in 1960.

The news media reported the results of another crime study done during the Johnson Administration. That group of experts decided that poverty was the cause of crime. The proposed solution was the Office of Economic Opportunity.

President Johnson promised to eliminate poverty. His "Great Society" poured billions of dollars into the hands of the nation's poor. Every American regardless of race or color was offered a job if he could handle it, training if he needed it, and cash if he were not interested in either.

After nearly 10 years and billions of dollars, even the most radical liberal would probably admit the O.E.O. has created more crime than it ever eliminated. Yet not even the President seems to be able to rid us of the O.E.O.

Several black civic leaders, who once declared integration was the only solution to Negro problems, are now saying that total segregation is their only hope.

Blacks have demanded all-black dormitories in several colleges. Whites dare not make the same request.

Federal statistics force both races to admit integration has neither slowed nor changed the rate of crime.

Several spokesmen for both races have dared point out that race relations have deteriorated rather than improved.

This much is obvious: Both the theories that racial discrimination and poverty were the causes of crime have been tested with no improvement — rather the situation seems to worsen.

What about the report that a lack of respect for authority generates crime? Why has that theory been ignored?

A California psychiatrist spoke out on national television recently opposing the death penalty, denouncing San Quentin as inhuman, and predicting a time when there would be no such prisons.

"Civilized people," he said, "must learn to respect the sanctity and dignity of human life."

More than 20,000 Americans are murdered every year. Not one murderer has been executed since 1967. The psychiatrist failed to explain why the lives of murderers are sacred but their victims' are not.

Another psychiatrist, Dr. Herbert Modlin of the Menninger Foundation, says that Americans are "softies and are being taken advantage of."

Our Attorney General admits he does not know the answer, and predicts criminal activity is "going to get worse."

How many rational adults would remain under the care of a physician who admitted he did not know the cause of their illness nor what to do about it but predicted they would get worse?

New Film Promoting University

A 14-minute color film produced by Batson-Rosenwald Associates and financed jointly by the Ex-Students Association, the Amarillo Board of City Development and the Men's Residence Hall Council at the university will be shown throughout the area in the coming months.

The film gives general information emphasizing the close relationships of students and faculty members on the campus and pays special attention to varied faculty programs, according to Wayne Hughes, Bureau Chief of the Broadcast Bureau at the university.

Directed and photographed by Bill Rhew, the film is narrated by Hal Mayfield and features both exterior and interior photographs of campus activities with highlighting aerial sequences.

University president, Lloyd I. Watkins, has the introductory role in the film which will be previewed Sunday at 10:30 on KGNC-TV, Channel 4, Amarillo. The film will later be shown on other local television stations and will be presented to the Tuesday meeting of the Operation Facelift Council, which is a promotional group for bettering the campus.

It Ain't No Bull

By CARROLL WILSON

The governor brushed the sleep from his eyes and rolled back the covers to sit up and stare out his window.

"What have I got to do today?" he asked himself as he pulled his pants on.

He picked up the telephone, jammed a stubby finger into the dial.

"Good morning, governor," came the response.

"What have I got to do today?" the governor asked.

"Well, you need to make some appointments first off," the telephoned-voice said. "There's your campaign manager in Cumby over in East Texas, a vacancy to fill on the state board on the effects of tax increases on the reading comprehension of juveniles and a vacancy on the board of regents of some college up in the Panhandle."

"Where?"

"The Panhandle — you know, up where all the feedyards are," said the aide as he thumbed through the 1975 edition of the Directory of Texas Cattle Feeders, Raisers, Movers, Buyers, Sprayers, Branders and Watchers.

The three-inch thick volume was well-worn. Names on page after page were marked through with red ink.

"What about old Joe whatshisname from just outside Cumby for that campaign slot?" the governor asked.

"Nah," replied the aide. "You appointed him a long time ago to the state Board for the Rehabilitation of Past Political Opponents."

"Well, what about old Franklin er uh uh whatshisname over there? He's got some cattle doesn't he?"

"You already appointed him to the state Board to Investigate the Laundry Bills of The Dirty Thirty.

"Governor," said the aid plaintively, "we're down to the last page of this directory and we've named every cattle feeder, raiser, mover, buyer, sprayer, brander and watcher to some post or other already. There's only a couple of names left."

"Well, who are they?" asked the governor.

"One's old _____ down in Starr County. He's got a milk cow and a billy goat."

"Give him the tax board," the governor said decisively. "Who else?"

"Then, there's old _____ from East Texas. He's got two T-Bone steaks in his freezer and a pound of hamburger."

"Sounds like a good campaign manager."

"And, the last one's an old boy it says here's living out south of a feedyard in West Texas. He's probably smelled more cows than most people have seen."

"Just the man to be my appointment to the board of regents at that college," smiled the governor.

"By the way," he said to his aide, "how's that legislation coming that would give every bull, steer and heifer the franchise in Texas if they're over weaning age?"

* * *

Republican candidate Dee Griffin Sr., who's facing opponents on the ballot in the race for county commissioner of precinct 4, is notable for his almost barefaced admission that he's running on the coat tails of incumbent Bill Butler.

Butler retires at the close of this year and word has it Griffin is his hand-picked successor.

Obviously, Griffin expects the people of Randall County to vote on him because of his good looks.

He refused to give The News an interview a week ago, claiming that an interview would give his Democratic opponent an unfair edge.

I suspect Griffin doesn't want to give the voters an edge. His refusal is tacit admission he does not intend to tell the voters where he stands on anything no matter what.

His little blurb in the League of Women Voters Guide is not much better.

"Randall County continues to be a growth leader and the present court has worked together giving good county management," he says in The Guide. "The incumbent, Bill Butler, has served extremely well and I would like to succeed Bill on this successful team."

Now, how's that for giving us some concrete information on his views?

One can only conclude from Griffin's recalcitrance that he won't say anything because he has nothing to say.

If that's the case, we certainly don't need him on commissioners court.

School Opinion Survey To Be Conducted This Summer

The Department of Education at the University of Texas, in cooperation with the Canyon Independent School District, will conduct a survey this summer of area residents to "get the feel of various opinions of the CISD program."

Every summer for the past 18 years, students at the University who are interested in graduate work on the administrative level of public education work together on this program called Foundations in Educational Administration.

Two years ago when the local school system began their self-evaluation study, they contacted the University hoping to do the survey then. At that time the schedule for FEA was filled until the summer of 1974. According to Jerry Jacobs, Superintendent of Canyon Schools, the survey will be made at a much better time now than when the school system first contacted FEA.

Approximately 25 students and Dr. Ken McIntyre and Dr. Carl R. Ashbough, instructors for the course, will spend four days in the Canyon school district. They will do a cross section survey in rural and urban areas in all parts of the district. According to Jacobs, they will try to be as thorough in gathering opinions as possible. They will tabulate the findings and compile a planning guide for the school board and administration.

The students, instructors, Canyon school board members and members of the local administration will work together to compile the questions to be used in the survey. A set of questions will be field tested prior to the survey to judge the reaction of the participants.

According to Jacobs one section of the survey will possibly deal with the building of new schools as the population grows. Also Jacobs said that the local school system will be interested in the potential location of these schools in the north part of the county.

Jacobs said that the FEA program has become skilled in getting a cross section of opinions of school district residents throughout the state. Jacobs stated that he was impressed by the fact that before the survey team leaves Canyon, the local school district will have the survey report in their hands.

Each member of the survey team will be trained in interview techniques by university personnel. All interviews will be conducted in such a way as to give the interviewee every opportunity to express himself about the school system.

In the final report, the answers to questions will be broken down into such divisions as parent/non-parent, PTA/non PTA, age and area.

The local school system will spend between $1500 and $2000 for the survey. This does include a $1500 fee for the services. All local transportation expenses, room and board and typists are to be provided during the four days. Jacobs said this cost was small in comparison to the cost of hiring a private firm to conduct such a survey.

Donations Accepted For Easter Service

Dear Carroll,

I feel the need to address myself, as president of the Canyon Ministerial Association, to the article Sunday about the Easter Sunrise Service. Some people have wondered why the offering for the "indigent fund" was not taken. It was correctly reported that there was to be an offering. However, as a result of an article in the Amarillo Globe-News indicating that there would be an offering, Mr. Elon Baker, director of the Palo Duro State Park called informing me that it was against state law to take such an offering in a state institution.

You may know that an offering has been taken for some years at this service. This offering provided about half our fund to help people in need. However, apparently Mr. Baker never realized that an offering was being taken and those in charge of the service in the past did not realize that it was contrary to state law.

As a result of Mr. Baker's call (and he had consulted with his superiors in Austin), we were unable to take an offering. Although the Ministerial Association will have to make other provisions for an offering, we are appreciative of our use of the amphitheater for the Easter Sunrise Service.

Let me suggest that those who would want to give toward this ministry may send a check to the "Canyon Ministerial Association," c/o Rev. Darold Baldwin, First Baptist Church, 1717 4th Ave. Canyon.

One correction to the article. The Easter offering will not subsidize the courses in Biblical literature at Canyon High School. Those who want to support that effort may send a check to Rev. Baldwin, made out to "High School Bible Course Fund."

Thanks for the space to make this correction.

Yours truly,
Rev. David W. Melber,
Chairman, Canyon
Ministerial Association

Thanks For Column On Nudie Books

Dear Mr. Wilson:

We want to thank you for your editorial in the April 7 Canyon News. We, too, feel that drug and grocery stores are not the places to display nudie magazines. If these magazines must be placed for sale publicly, surely the businessmen concerned can use more discretion in displaying them.

Each civic organization in Canyon has the same basic goal: the betterment of Canyon. All of the beneficial projects of these organizations are directed toward this goal. Canyon prides itself on being a "family" town and in having an excellent school system. This shows the concern that the adults of Canyon have for our children and youth. Yet, sometimes the obvious is overlooked, such as the display of girlie magazines in places of business where children of all ages are present every day.

Our children and youth depend on our protection and good judgment. We believe that these magazines should not be in public view of young people. Hopefully, other Canyon citizens will speak out on this matter.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Glenn Dowlen will retire this year after 30 years of teaching. She has taught in the Canyon School system for the past 25 years. Here Mrs. Dowlen points out a certain sound to her grandson, Todd Manley. Todd is a first grader this year and is the only one of her grandchildren Mrs. Dowlen has taught.

Mrs. Dowlen Plans Retirement From Teaching

"I loved every minute of it," said Mrs. Glenn Dowlen, kindergarten through third grade music teacher at Rex Reeves Elementary School, who will be retiring this year after 30 years of work in the classroom.

Prior to entering the classroom, in 1938, Mrs. Dowlen had taught piano and voice. She left the classroom for a period of six years following the birth of her daughter.

Mrs. Dowlen said that there had been many changes in music teaching during the 30 year period. She thinks that basically K-3 needs to sing a lot as well as learn the fundamentals of music. Mrs. Dowlen stated that the number one thing in teaching music was to help the student learn to love music.

"If I have helped to make a child happy it has been worthwhile," said Mrs. Dowlen.

Mrs. Dowlen feels that music is a definite part of life and that it affects everyone as long as they live. In teaching, she uses all kinds of music. "We have a wonderful array of material available to us," said Mrs. Dowlen. She said that she felt a challenge from using new things in the classroom. She stated that the administration and school board had been very helpful in securing needed materials for her use.

In teaching over 400 students this year, Mrs. Dowlen pointed out that there were some large classes. She said that even though there were some large groups, it was more important that a child in the K-3 age group come in contact with music every day.

She stated that her classroom experiences had been "very happy ones."

Mrs. Dowlen does not know what she will do following retirement.

She has three children, Glenn, Jr., who is head of the voice department at Oklahoma State University; George, Randall County District Attorney; and Mrs. Wilton Manley, who teaches fourth, fifth, and sixth grade special services at Rex Reeves.

The course presents a practical emphasis on present day interior design. Such topics as color, house orientation, room function, emotional effect, specific areas such as floors, walls, draperies and upholstery and accessories, furniture, "What's on the Market Now," inherited pieces, textiles, fabrics, carpets, hard-surface flooring, how to make best investment for dollars spent, home crafts and maintenance are to be discussed.

Cake Decorating will be taught by Mrs. Lewis Tucek and will run for four weeks, two hours each evening. The fee for the course is $4 dollars. Again, the minimum age is 16. This course is an introduction to the basic art of decorating cakes for all occasions or just for family fun.

Flower Arrangements for Beginners will be taught by Morris Westberry. The course will run for four weeks, two hours each evening. The fee for the course is $4 per person and the minimum age is 16. paign political espionage won't continue, they're sadly mistaken," he said.

Earlier in the day, Price loosed harsh words on the Congress itself and said much of the crisis in confidence in government today can be attributed to the lackluster record of that body.

"Watergate is certainly not the whole reason for today's crisis in confidence in government officials," he said. "More likely it was the straw that broke the camel's back. The public has been working up to this crisis for a long time."

Price said the Congress has for a number of years appropriated more federal spending than allowed in the budget, told the President not to spend more than the budget ceiling and then "complained when he cut funding back to the level the Congress itself had set.

"Now the Congress is crying about losing power to the Executive Branch, when it was the Congress itself which has passed over its power in bits and pieces to the White House over the years."

The lines must also be cased an additional length to travel under the proposed service road, he said. Only that part of the line which travels under the service roads and highway are cased. Other parts of the line are not cased, Loudder said. The casing is used so crews will not have to tear up a highway to repair a water or sewer line leak.

Loudder said he hopes crews can complete the lowering and casing job on the pipeline faster than eight hours. He said the eight hours would be an outside figure.

Through the increase, he was able to pack the commission in his favor and in favor of the big cattleman, she said.

Terming Briscoe more a "figure-head" than a "caretaker," Mrs. Farenthold also hit his repeated reference to his kept promise of no new taxes for Texans.

She accused the governor of "juggling" other funds to provide the revenue needed to run the state without additional tax money.

She also attacked Briscoe's program for education and higher education and said he is "oblivious" to higher education.

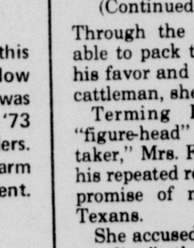

The visit to Canyon was the second for Mrs. Farenthold. She spoke on the university campus shortly after the first of the year on the Bill of Rights, and was honored with a reception.

Dist. Judge Hopefuls View Bench Differently

Four candidates for the bench of the 47th Dist. Court indicated Thursday night they view their jobs a bit differently as more than a dozen hopefuls for political offices in Randall County and the area capsulized their platforms here.

The candidates spoke briefly at a meeting of the Canyon Political Action Group in the city.

Dist. Judge candidates O.M. Calhoun, Herbert C. Martin, Bryan Poff and Connally Lockhart warmed to their topic to highlight the evening of candidate speechs.

Calhoun, one of three contenders for the Democratic bid in the May 4 primary, took a swipe at another Democratic opponent during his speech, when he noted that district judges do not make or enforce the laws of the land.

"Regardless of and contrary to the thoughts of some, judges do not make the laws or enforce the laws," he said. "Judges apply the law.

"They should be capable of reaching not only legal judgments. They should be unbiased, unprejudiced, uncompromised by political or elective furor."

Calhoun noted that all four candidates for the office claim experience is the key to their qualifications. Then, he pointed to his 26 years in the practice of law.

Martin, another Democratic contender for the bench, told the audience they should select a judge who knows people, who can empathize with people, and understand their problems.

He, too, pointed to his experience on the bench as well as a practicing attorney. Martin said he's practiced law for 30 years and spent six years as an associate justice on the court of civil appeals.

During his tenure as a justice, he wrote 178 legal opinions and only a dozen were overturned by the state supreme court, he said.

Poff, currently state representative from Canyon and also a Democratic hopeful for the bench, differed from his opponents.

"I think a judge must enforce the law," he said. "I believe the judge is an arm of law enforcement. He's got to be fair, but he's got to apply that law."

While Poff said he doesn't believe a judge should legislate, he said he's been legislating for four years and is ready to begin a judicial career.

He said he believes judges should be elected rather than appointed.

Lockhart, who is the sole Republican contender, noted that probation and parole for convicted criminals is as much a part of the body of law as anything else.

"Any time he doesn't have a probation system, then the judge is not upholding the law because it's as much a part of the law as any of the rest of them," Lockhart said. "Any time the judge says 'let's forget about probation' all the defendant has to do is ask for a jury and generally speaking the jury is more lenient than the judge."

Lockhart reminded the audience they should be concerned about the type of men they elect to office and should take the time to become involved in the political system.

The three candidates for state representative were also on hand Thursday night.

Democratic candidate Ed Fletcher told his audience the people should elect a man with common sense and with a business-like approach to government.

He said through his talks with people in his district he believes three or four problems are key issues. One is inflation, another is funding for schools, another is water for the region and another is maintenance of the basic structures of government in the hands of the people.

Bob Simpson, also a Democratic candidate, said the people of the district must send a representative to Austin who can communicate effectively with representatives from other regions of the state to solve some of the problems which face the Panhandle.

"A lot of people down there don't realize it's (water) a problem," he said.

He said the representative must also support West Texas State University and assure that the university is funded adequately.

John Kennehan, who is a Republican candidate for the office, said the people of the state have sent "too many lawyers" to Austin as their representatives. He said a businessman should be sent.

Other candidates present at the Thursday session were Marty Schantz and Fern Patterson, candidates for the county treasurer's office; County Clerk LeRoy Hutton; and Bill Moore, John McCann, John Fulgenzi, candidates for county commissioner.

Army Sergeant Returns To Area For Recruiting

Army Sergeant John M. Sims, of Canyon, was selected to return to his home town area for temporary duty as an assistant recruiter for the 13th Support Brigade at Ft. Hood, Tex.

While serving in the area, Sgt. Sims will work with local recruiters to obtain enlistees for the Army in general and for the 13th Support Brigade specifically.

Sgt. Sims is regularly assigned to headquarters detachment of the Brigade's 169th Maintenance Battalion.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Sims, live at 710 4th Ave., Canyon, and his wife, Lavern, resides in Harker Heights, Tex.

Amarilloan Is Named Regent

Amarillo cattleman Jack Shelton has been named to the West Texas State University board of regents.

Shelton was named Friday by Gov. Dolph Briscoe to replace Wayne Owen of Lubbock, who announced his resignation just before April 1.

Shelton will serve out the remainder of Owen's unexpired term, which ends Aug. 31, 1975. Owen was also serving out the unexpired term of Boone Pickens of Amarillo, who resigned last spring.

Shelton is owner of Bravo Cattle Co. and is a director of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association. He is past president of the Panhandle Livestock Association and is a director of the Amarillo First National Bank.

He is a graduate of the University of Texas and has a wife and four children.

Crager Honored At Texas A&M

Bruce L. Crager of Canyon has been elected a living area representative to the Texas A&M University's Student Senate for 1974-75.

Crager, a junior ocean engineering major, will represent university owned apartments. He is the son of Ada Crager, 407 Holman Lane.

Happy Soldier Gets Promotion

Perry G. Hall, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Hall, Route 1, Happy, was promoted to Army Specialist Five while serving with the 38th Personnel and Administration Battalion in Germany.

Spec. Hall is a clerk with the 9th Replacement Detachment of the battalion in Nellingen.

Bosley Home From Thailand

Air Force Sargeant Mackey Bosley returned to Canyon this week after serving in Thailand for a year.

Sgt. Bosley is spending a 30-day leave here with his wife, Peggy, and 18 month old son, Si, before moving his family with him to Malstrom Air Force Base near Great Falls, Mont.

While in Canyon, Sgt. Bosley is also visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Bosley, Jr., and with his parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bible of Canyon.

At that point the candidate hedged.

"It is my understanding that he voted for that bill," Hightower declared.

He charged that prime interest rates are the highest in history as he swung into the economic crisis saying rates took a jump at the beginning of the Nixon administration and continued to climb.

He was somewhat vague on solutions to the economic crisis but said inflation could best be controlled by stimulation of productivity and getting world-wide inflation problems solved.

On the energy crisis he charged that people in authority have been counter productive in finding solutions.

He said he is for the depletion allowance of domestic production of oil but not for foreign production. He noted that demands of environmental groups and lowering of depletion allowance has contributed to the energy crisis.

"I'm not saying Jack Hightower can solve any of these problems," said the candidate. "But as a representative I would be determined to work for solutions. We must reach out and be innovative and creative on water and energy."

On detente he had this to say:

"I would hope that we can encourage the kind of foreign policy that would let us live in peace and harmony with both China and Russia but we must remain watchful every minute. They have not changed and they are still determined to change our form of government, one way or another."

Cookie Sales Reach 5,540

Each girl selling over 40 boxes was presented with the special patch, according to Mrs. B.J. Ormsby, scout executive.

Canyon scouts had 135 participating girls selling the cookies for a total sale of 5,540 boxes aiding coffers of the scouting program here as well as the Amarillo Girl Scout Council which assists with funding of Camp Kiwanis which is used by local groups throughout the year.

Honored Brownies for the most sales were Lynda Brotherton of Troop 51 who sold 157 boxes and Kristine Grillo of Troop 142 for selling 101 boxes.

In the Junior Scout division cookie sales honors went to Kristi Sheffy of Troop 181 for 70 boxes; Tiffiney Cartwright of Troop 122 for 78 boxes; Cindy Dugan of Troop 187 for 144 boxes sold; and Terri Coleman of Troop 54 for 60 boxes sold.

Honors in the Cadette division went to Jan Park of Troop 174 for selling 138 boxes and Sam Olson for Troop 15 who sold 50 boxes.

Jury Decides Abuse Case

A 47th District Court jury spent only 15 minutes Thursday determining the parent-child relationship of an Amarillo couple should be severed with their 8-year-old son.

The jury retired to consider its verdict here about 3 p.m. Thursday and returned at about 3:15 p.m. with the conclusion.

The jury's action severs the parent-child relationship of Charles Peterson, his wife, Eleanor, and their son.

The trial of the case consumed three and a half days in the courtroom with a long string of witnesses, including psychologists, psychiatrists, policemen and friends.

The case marked the first time in Texas the state welfare department has brought suit to sever the parent-child relationship on the sole basis of psychological abuse of the child.

Dist. Atty. George Dowlen said other cases in Texas are centered around physical abuse of a child.

Following the jury verdict, Mrs. Peterson was found in contempt of court and fined $100 plus costs. Her two attornies, Byron Singleton and John Scott were also found in contempt of court and were fined $1 each plus costs.
